have you ever watched a sparrow collect twigs for its nest? or a seagull sneaking away a chip? they might have some of the smallest brains in the animal kingdom, but there's nothing birdbrained about birds. this week gobscore brings us a Spot On Story to celebrate the joy and the intelligence of our feathered friends.

Need something a little different to use in the classroom or support homeschooling parents? Spot On Stories are back with a new video every Monday at 10am!

when the world turns upside down anything becomes possible here is a playful, poetic and visual performance for all from gobscore. birdbrained isn't an insult in this new world when we see some of the amazing and amusing things birds do naturally from tweeting to travelling lengths of the globe without sat navs humans can learn from other species.

Suggestions for additional activities

Did you join in with the Big Garden Bird Watch? Why not take an hour to do a wildlife survey of your back garden or park? How many different types of birds do you see in one day? The RSPB have a whole bunch of resources on their website to help you identify all sorts of birds and to make your garden a more bird friendly spot! To find more information and lots of activities take a look at the 'Fun & Learning' section on the RSPB website.
